

Can applicants for cash assistance receive Employment First Supportive Services?

Yes, an applicant for ADC is eligible for supportive services if they are participating in Employment First orientation, assessment, self-sufficiency planning, Self-Sufficiency Contract development, job search, community service or employment.

They also could be eligible for up to 6 months of transitional EF supportive services if they lose eligibility for ADC due to their earned income, even if they have not completed their Self-Sufficiency Contract. They are considered to be cooperating with EF since their ADC has not been closed due to failure to cooperate with EF or due to their waiver of receipt of ADC or they have not overtly indicated their refusal to cooperate with EF.
